Still displaced a month after evacuation

Recovery effort.
City announces new website, expert panel on flood mitigation, and community meetings with flood-affected residents set for next week

ROBSON FLETCHER
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

When Clayton Campbell evacuated his Beltline apartment during the flood in late June, he figured he'd be out for a day or two, at most.

"We're now approaching five weeks of being displaced," he said. "It's been a little surreal."

Spencer Wallace, another resident of the same block at 126–14 Ave. S.E., is fed up with what he describes as the landlord's slow pace of repairs, lack of communication, and lax security at the still-powerless and uninhabited building.

As he offered Metro a tour of the property Tuesday afternoon, he was not surprised to arrive and find the back door propped wide open.

"If they feel like it, people can just go right in," he said, adding that squatters had to be kicked out at one point and several of his neighbours have been burglarized.

Building owner Prit Sandhu said he's doing the best he can to repair the heavily damaged building and keep it safe under difficult circumstances.

"We patrol there," he said. "I go there three or four times a day, and my son goes there."

But Wallace said the building should have full-time security guards, and area Ald. John Mar agrees.

"The building should hire their own private security," Mar said. "Other buildings have done so."

The city doesn't have a precise count of how many Calgarians remain displaced, but Mayor Naheed Nenshi said it's a "small number," mostly in the Beltline and Mission areas.

"Our No. 1 priority still has not changed," Nenshi said Tuesday while announcing a series of new flood recovery measures. "We need to get people back in their homes."

When he finally is able to return home, Wallace wants to move as soon as possible, but said the current market is "abysmal" for would-be renters and will only get worse as students return in September.

High River. Evacuees moved into temporary housing

Some flood evacuees from the hard-hit southern Alberta community of High River are getting a change of scene.

The provincial government says people who have been living in hotels and dormitories since last month's flooding can move into a temporary neighbourhood starting Wednesday.

The site just north of High River has trailers, a recreation centre, laundry facilities and three kitchens, and has been built from scratch.

It's intended to provide stability for residents while they rebuild the homes they had to flee on short notice June 20 as the Highwood River rose dramatically.

Housing will allow them to remain near their community.

Rick Fraser, associate minister of regional recovery, says the government realizes people want to get their lives back to as normal as possible.

"I know this new neighbourhood will create a sense of community and give families a safe place to call home while they get back on their feet," he said in a statement released before a tour on Tuesday.

"They'll be living close to High River, meaning they'll be near family, friends, neighbours and schoolmates."

The community, known as Saddlebrook, is the first temporary neighbourhood to open and will initially house about 100 people. It has room for 1,200.

Other temporary neighbourhoods are being considered for Calgary, the Municipal District of Bighorn, and the Siksika and Stoney Nakoda First Nations. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spike goes south for fun in the sun

Florida. Calgarians aren't likely to see the elephant before he's gone as the zoo remains closed

katie.turner@metronews.ca

It will take two days of driving, an 18,000-pound crate, and a whole lot of manpower to transport Spike the elephant from Calgary to his new home in the sun and sand.

Last year, the zoo announced it would be relocating its elephants to new homes based on an increased understanding that the elephants are better served in larger social groups and a more year-round facility.

Spike, 31, will be leaving for his new home at Busch Gardens Tampa toward the end of the summer.

Director of animal care Jake Veasey said zookeepers will work with Spike over the coming weeks to familiarize him with the crate before he's transported by truck.

"There's a very good chance, unfortunately, that the Calgary public won't be able to say goodbye to Spike here at the zoo," said Veasey, explaining it's unlikely that portion of the zoo will open before his departure as there's ongoing construction following last month's floods.

Veasey said as Spike is on loan from the Miami Zoo, the two facilities worked together to determine the best fit would be Busch Gardens because of its work in Asian elephant conservations, as well as the Calgary Zoo's close relationship with Jeff Andrews, the vice-president of zoological operations with Busch Gardens.

Andrews said Spike will fit in with their plans to expand the herd at Busch Gardens, and potentially breed Spike with one of the five female elephants already at the zoo. He'll also be able to enjoy the outdoors more frequently than in Calgary.

"Many animals from Southeast Asia, including Asian elephants, do quite well in a climate like south Florida," he said. "Elephants there already have access to the entire exhibit, the facility inside and out, 24 hours a day throughout the entire year."

The rest of the herd

- In nature, male elephants often migrate between social groups.
- A home for Calgary Zoo's three female elephants is expected to be announced in the near future, according to Veasey. All three will be moved to the same location.
- "We're very close," he said. "It's not just assessing the facility, it's assessing the long-term plans at the facility."

Locals' density complaints based on 'misunderstanding'

Mall redevelopment. Current land-use rules, in place for decades, allow for buildings as high as 15 storeys, according to city staff

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

After spending nearly 12 hours hearing from residents upset over things council likely can't legally change, Mayor Naheed Nenshi vowed to improve future communications regarding development laws.

"I'm deeply sorry that there's such a misunderstanding about this, and I'll take that on as the city's fault," Nenshi said Tuesday during a marathon public hearing over a proposed area redevelopment plan (ARP) for the Stadium Shopping Centre.

Dozens of University Heights residents registered to speak at the hearing, most expressing concerns over the size of the potential redevelopment of the strip mall at the northwest corner of 16 Avenue and Uxbridge Drive N.W.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi listens to one of dozens of University Heights residents who spoke against an area redevelopment plan Tuesday. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO

Many homeowners said the mixed-use redevelopment — which could include retail, office and residential space — would lead to a variety of problems, particularly traffic congestion.

But Ald. John Mar pointed out that council couldn't change development rules governing density on the site even if it wanted to.

"The land use and the zoning has been there ... since 1970," Mar said. "To change that now would probably require a massive court battle."

University Heights Community Association president Peter Khu said residents just want something that's "technically feasible" for the area.

"We're asking you to make the neighbourhood work," he said.

Mike Brescia of Western Securities, the landowner, said the city has done a "very good job" on the whole but could improve in one aspect.

"I think they do need to work on communicating to the communities what their role is at this point in the process," he said.

Man accused of threatening Crown lawyers

Police have charged a man with allegedly making threats against two Crown prosecutors.

Benjamin Ernest Christensen, 27, formerly of Calgary, has been charged with two counts each of extortion, intimidation of a justice participant and uttering threats.

"We don't get a lot of threats against the Crown that come to our attention, but it is not isolated," said Staff Sgt. Harv Davies with the Calgary police.

"Threats against the judiciary are taken very seriously."

The alleged threat was initially received via email by the Calgary Crown Prosecutors Office in March 2013.

Police said the email contained specific and targeted threats against two prosecutors designed to get charges dropped in a case involving an associate of the accused.

Police said they were not sure of the relationship between the accused and the associate.

Officers needed to find enough evidence to support the charges before making an arrest, such as the ability of the accused to carry out the threat.

"There were a lot of moving parts put in place for this investigation," said Davies.

4 charged after drug, gun bust

A month-long investigation after a tip from the public has led to the arrests of four individuals and the seizure of several weapons and drugs in an alleged dial-a-dope operation.

Last Thursday, police executed search warrants on two southeast homes, one in the 6200 block of 17 Avenue S.E. and the other in the 900 block of Pensdale Crescent S.E., and on an associated vehicle.

By the numbers

$200K

Almost $200,000 in drugs were seized in this operation.

The homes were said to be "stash locations" for the operation.

In total, investigators seized more than $98,000 in methamphetamine, $52,000 in marijuana, $30,000 in heroin, $11,000 in cocaine, and various amounts of OxyContin and codeine.

Several weapons were also recovered, including four long-barrelled rifles, a revolver, swords, machetes, a conducted energy weapon, a flare gun and bear spray.

David Lee Little, 37, Jeremy Douglas Mockler, 34, Brandi Lee Ellis, 34, and Jani Kristian Suutarinen, 37, have all been charged with multiple drug- and weapons-related offences, about 50 charges in total.

None of the accused were previously known to police.

Officers say the operation was aimed at providing street-level distribution.

Photogs save 1000s of flood-damaged pics

Free. The married couple have volunteered their time to restore pictures

katie.turner@metronews.ca

After taking photos for more than two decades, Dave and Laurie-Lynn Brookwell have captured many memories and now, following the flood, they're working to preserve them.

The married couple, who own and operate Illusions Studio, were on their way to the Okanagan to celebrate an anniversary the day the flood hit, which quickly changed their plans.

"We got a hold of all our clients in our database because we know a lot of them are along the river," said Dave.

For the next two weeks, the couple went from house to house helping people clean out their properties, and offering to take any damaged photos.

Quoted

"All three of us were bawling the whole time."

Dave Brookwell, on returning the first set of photos they worked on to the owner

"It started as just a project for our clients because these people have supported us for the past 25 years," said Dave. "We're like part of the family. We've been at all their events, so it seemed fitting that we were there when they were ripping out their house."

Dave estimates they've restored upwards of 7,000 photos in the past month. In addition to photos, he said, they've restored about 3,500 slides, which they hope to covert to a digital format.

Despite the countless hours of work, Dave said, the effort was all worth it for the pair when they were able to deliver the first set of photos back to their rightful owner.

Man charged after driving three times over legal limit

Airdrie RCMP have charged a driver who was allegedly three times over the legal alcohol limit when they stopped the car Tuesday morning.

According to police, they received a report shortly before 8 a.m. Tuesday of a possible impaired driver. Police received a detailed description of the car and the suspect and the direction of travel.

After being arrested, the 51-year-old male driver blew three times over the legal limit, police said. METRO

Missing woman. Human remains found near Strathmore identified

RCMP say human remains found near Strathmore earlier this year are those of a woman who has been missing since 2006.

On May 13, remains were discovered in a rural area east of Calgary, and have since been identified as those of Maria Rosa Ciciolla who was last seen in Calgary in July 2006.

According to RCMP, Ciciolla was known to have a "high-risk lifestyle in Calgary which made her vulnerable to exploitation by others." She was 35 at the time of her disappearance.

Let it be free. Survivors of Lac-Mégantic disaster invited to see Sir Paul

Hearing music icon Paul McCartney play Tuesday night on Quebec City's historic Plains of Abraham is a little more special for Caroline Tremblay than the average rock fan.

Her husband was a big admirer of the former Beatle.

Tremblay's husband, Guy Bolduc, was among the dozens killed when fireballs from an exploding train devastated Lac-Mégantic's downtown and engulfed the bar where he was performing.

"He adored Mr. McCartney," Tremblay wrote in a moving letter to promoter 3 E Event, Experience, Emotion, which offered free tickets to the musician's show for Lac-Mégantic survivors.

"You have allowed my children and me to discover the musical universe of this great artist and (a chance to) bathe in music at a party surrounded by our friends."

The free ticket idea was floated to McCartney's team by the promoter at the beginning of last week. The former Beatle's entourage quickly agreed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Train safety

Transport Canada toughens rules

Canadian transportation authorities banned one-man crews for trains with dangerous goods Tuesday, responding to calls for tougher regulations after an oil train derailment in Quebec killed 47 people.

Transport Canada also said trains with dangerous goods will not be allowed to be left unattended on a main track. Hand brakes must be applied to trains left one hour or more.

The tragedy occurred when a runaway train carrying 72 carloads of crude oil derailed. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Will and Kate naming U.K.'s next generation

The first chapter. British bookmakers have taken thousands of bets on the monikers George and James

Historic task

"Names do define an era."

Robert Lacey, a royal historian who has written books on Prince William's mother and grandmother

Britain's Prince William, and his wife Kate, Duchess of Cambridge, hold the Prince of Cambridge, Tuesday. KIRSTY WIGGLESWORTH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Victorians. The Edwardians. The Elizabethans.

Royal names can define a generation. So imagine the pressure on the new parents to pick the right one.

Now that Prince William and his wife Kate have a baby boy — the third in line for the throne — they must choose the name for a royal who may take Britain into the 22nd century. They'll start by considering British monarchs from the past.

Elizabeth I offered her name to the golden era in which Britannia ruled the waves and the Elizabethans consolidated a renaissance of national prosperity. Victoria's reign was defined by rapid industrialization with straight-backed Victorian morality. Her son, Edward VII, lent his name to the champagne and cigar period before the First World War in which the rigid class system came under attack.

With so many people to please — inside and outside the palace walls — the House of Windsor is likely to pick more than one name for the boy who was born in London on Monday. After all, his father Prince William, a.k.a. William Arthur Philip Louis, has four.

There may be a nod to great grandfather Prince Philip, or grandfathers Prince Charles and Michael Middleton, Kate's father. Or King Arthur. Or a host of other dead kings.

But the first name, that has to hit the right note. It is likely to hang around a bit. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

‘Maybe Hitler didn’t kill enough of them’

France. Lawmaker on defensive after comment about Gypsies made public

A French lawmaker is defending himself against accusations that he told a group of Gypsies he wished the Nazis had killed more members of the minority during the Second World War.

Gilles Bourdouleix, a member of parliament and mayor for the town of Cholet near Nantes, had a confrontation with Gypsies on Sunday, when he visited a field owned by the town where Gypsies are illegally living in caravans. He asked them to leave.

The Courrier de l’Ouest newspaper, which had a journalist at the scene, reported that some of the Gypsies made Nazi salutes at Bourdouleix and that he responded by saying: “Maybe Hitler didn’t kill enough of them.” On Monday, the paper released a recording on its website on which the lawmaker can be heard saying that.

On Tuesday, Bourdouleix told the French television station iTELE that he was merely repeating a statement the journalist had made.

Dutch court blocks extradition to U.S. of terror suspect

Dutch judges blocked the extradition Tuesday of a terror suspect to the United States, saying he was tortured in Pakistan after his 2010 arrest and it is unclear whether American authorities had any involvement.

The Hague Court of Appeal ruling was a significant victory for the man identified only as Sabir K. in his attempts to avoid being sent for trial in America, but Dutch authorities can still launch a final appeal to the country’s Supreme Court.

“He is very satisfied that the role of the Americans is finally being looked at in a critical light,” his lawyer Andre Seebregts said. “He has said from the very beginning that the Americans were involved.”

Senator married to child obstructs vote on age, citing Shariah law

Nigeria. Protesters demand politicians revisit amendment in order to set the age of consent at 18

Many Nigerians are enraged, wondering how a senator notorious for marrying a 14-year-old girl can use Shariah law as an excuse to filibuster a constitutional amendment that has sparked a debate on the age of consent for girls.

Since the country's secular and Islamic laws clashed in the upper house of Parliament last week, concerned citizens are using petitions, protests and social networks to demand the Senate revisit the issue.

"Every Nigerian should bow his or her head in shame because instead of crushing the head of the lustful beast that seeks to fornicate with our children, to steal their virtues and to destroy their future, what the Senate did the other day was to compromise with and cater for the filthy appetites and godless fantasies of a bunch of child molesters and sexual predators," Femi Fani-Kayode, a traditional chief and former cabinet minister, fumed in a letter to The Vanguard newspaper Monday.

The vote was on an amendment to set the age when Nigerians can renounce their citizenship, but it has wider implications because it suggests when a girl is old enough to be married.

Currently, the constitution says only that a person must be of "full age" to renounce citizenship. The Senate had voted to approve an amendment to set the age at 18, to bring the clause in line with other laws setting the age of consent for marriage and voting.

But, after the vote was counted and against Senate rules and procedures, Sen. Sani Ahmed Yerima opposed the age limit.

"By Islamic law any woman that is married, she is of age, so if you now say she is not of age then it means that you are going against Islamic law," said Yerima. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Child brides

- Sen. Yerima is notorious for his marriage to a 14-year-old Egyptian girl in 2010, when he was 49. He had divorced a 17-year-old whom he married when she was 15, to comply with Islamic law that allows a maximum of four wives at a time.
- Nobody knows quite how many thousands of girls are forced into marriage in Nigeria — some say more than 50 per cent of girls in the Muslim north.

A woman protests against underage marriages in Lagos, Nigeria. Nigeria's secular and Islamic laws clashed when a senator notorious for marrying a 14-year-old filibustered a vote to amend the constitution by insisting that a girl child comes of age when she marries — not at 18. I'll take those in yellow, pink and black, please. Economists say a stunning jump in Canadian retail sales in May points to stronger economic growth. KEITH BEATY/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

Shopaholics' spending shocks economists

In the mood to splurge. Canadians indulged in some retail therapy, surprising experts and boosting expectations for economic growth

Canadian consumers went on a shopping spree in May, triggering a stunning jump in retail sales that will almost certainly help boost second-quarter economic growth beyond expectations.

The raw numbers surprised economists, who had expected a modest 0.4 per cent bump. Instead, Statistics Canada said the retail sector in May boosted sales five times that, by 1.9 per cent, to $40.4 billion.

Particularly meaningful for gross domestic product growth, sales in volume terms also expanded by 1.9 per cent, meaning the increase was not related to currency fluctuations.

"It's hard to say what happened. Everything went right, it seems," said Jimmy Jean, an economist with Desjardins Capital Markets.

"We're probably seeing a little bit of catch-up because since 2011 sales have been almost flat. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Law. Company may face suits for overseas incidents

Three lawsuits against a Canadian mining company over alleged shootings and gang rapes at a Guatemalan project will be allowed to proceed in Canada following a ruling that makes it possible for firms to face liability at home for incidents that occur overseas.

Lawyers for the plaintiffs, 13 Mayan Guatemalans, said the decision is a "wake-up call" for Canadian companies about their responsibilities at foreign mining projects.

"This step in the case uses existing legal rules that have not been applied in this way before," lawyer Murray Klippenstein said in an interview. "Companies operating abroad, need to take a very, very, serious look at the possibility ... that shenanigans abroad that they thought would never result in liability may result in accountability in Canadian courts." ## Sorry, college kids. Bank of Mom and Dad is closed

Grants and scholarships are taking the lead in paying college bills, surpassing the traditional role parents long have played in helping foot the bills, according to a report from loan giant Sallie Mae.

College costs are driving decisions about which schools to attend, what to study once there and even where to live. While the recession has largely passed, economic worries have not and many families are making college choices driven by fears of tuition hikes and job losses, according to the survey.

"Parents are willing to stretch themselves," said Sarah Ducich, Sallie Mae's senior vice-president for public policy. "It's not that they're willing to pay. It's that their income is not keeping up." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SHAMING THE COUCH CRITICS

JUST SAYIN'

Mike Benhaim
Guest columnist

The way I see it, our culture is separated into two groups: those who do, and those who watch. While most of us would rather be doing even half of the things we're watching, it's much safer to sit on high horses atop ivory towers in glass houses throwing stones and pointing fingers and such. It's like playing a game of truth or dare, only when it's our turn, we pass. How wonderful it is to keep our secrets hidden while watching others exposed, sitting in judgment, silently thanking the heavens that no one video-taped that drunken night in Thailand with the woman you can't be sure really was.

Hence our fascination with reality TV. We've gone from being spectators to a society of shameless voyeurs.

And though I try to be, I am no better. There was never enough alcohol to make me watch Jersey Shore, and every brief foray into an episode of Keeping up with the Kardashians ended with me rocking back and forth in the fetal position praying for Armageddon. But I have watched my share of these shows, and the stench of that shame still lingers.

Even worse is the news. Reality stars sign releases, but when the media gets hold of a real scandal, look out! When it was discovered that Tiger Woods was having extramarital affairs, even the male newscasters sanctimoniously shook their heads in disappointment. Really? Where's Heidi Fleiss when you need her?

Now I don't condone cheating, but most men are barely shocked when a friend bangs the cafeteria lady at the YMCA, let alone a celebrity athlete shagging an exotic swimsuit model. Ladies, there are many respectable men out there, but at least a portion of every day is occupied by fantasies best unshared. Yet when someone acts on them and gets busted on Cheaters, you can turn to your wife and say, "That's shameful."

And how many of us can sing as well as contestants on The Voice or American Idol? It doesn't stop us from critiquing their choice of arrangement or pitch. The couch is the new judges' bench.

Until recently, viewership has always been about the vicarious thrill of those we could only dream of emulating athletes, superheroes, models or rock stars. Now we spend our time peering into the dysfunction of people whose lives make us feel better about our own. That is, until we discover we've made them rich. Yeah, it's one thing watching strangers pinpoint their child's paternity on Maury Povich, but it's quite another when Honey Boo-Boo moves into the house next door. That's when we collectively unleash that torrent of negative energy that ultimately begs for their failure.

Again, I stand among you, guilty of the very transgressions I denounce. I simply wonder if our collective karma is not better served watching what inspires our highest doing, and affecting change from there. Just sayin'.

Baring it all for a photo shoot

It looks like a colourful tropical tree frog but on closer inspection you can see five human models adorned with body paint posing in dramatic forms so as to appear like a wondrous amphibian. Italian-born artist Johannes Stötter spends up to five months painstakingly planning and perfecting each work.

METRO

Adapting to canvas

Stötter, whose creations won him the World Bodypainting Festival title, said the key to success is to know when to pause and reflect on what to paint.

"If I paint on the model non-stop, I can't tell if the work is good or not. I have to pause and think. This is where the surprising elements of a warm and alive skin-canvas emerge and I see how to adapt the artwork." METRO

Artist's viewpoint

"The biggest challenge is to create the artwork in a beautiful but fast manner. I use people and not a canvas, so I can't spend days on end painting."

Painstaking painting

hours is how long Stötter takes to complete each work of art using special breathable paint.

As cycling season is in full swing, so too is bike-theft season. In an effort to ensure that 'nooooooo' moment, when you realize your bike is gone, never happens, we've looked into digital tools to stash in your pannier to keep your ride safe.

MARCO GOMEO

Spike Bike

Kind of like Find my iPhone, but for your bike. A small GPS device attaches to your bike (under the seat, behind a water bottle cage or somewhere else discreet) and lets you track your bike through your phone. You can also track your own rides, which you can brag about later to your friends using Spike Bike.

Bikeshepherd.org

Not only can you register your ride on Bike Shepherd, you can also buy tags that can help recover your bike if it does succumb to the lock-cutting hands of bike thieves. While the tags help you find your stolen bike, they also act kind of like a neighbourhood watch sign, or guard dog to dissuade thieves from pulling the fast one in the first place.

Racklove

Based out of San Francisco ("ground zero for bike thieves"), this bike-loving community is a place where people can not only buy and sell bikes, but also lets you set an alert if your bike matches one that appears on an online ad. While it works in the U.S., they're still building the network up here.

What's old is new with Wolverine

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

Other than Captain Canuck, Wolverine is the best known superhero to hail from the Great White North.

According to his comic book backstory he was born in 19th century Canada — Northern Alberta to be exact — and served in the First Canadian Parachute Battalion before being recruited by Team X, a CIA black-ops group. When movie fans first encountered the character, however, little was known about him.

At the beginning of the original X-Men movie he was suffering from memory loss and couldn't remember how he became a superhero with retractable bone claws, made of the near indestructible metal alloy adamantium bonded to his skeleton and a healing ability that allows him to quickly recover from virtually any wound, disease or toxin.

This weekend The Wolverine continues the story, although star Hugh Jackman is quick to point out that it is not a sequel.

"With an all-new cast and setting it in Japan, it's going to give us a whole new visual esthetic," he told Total Film.

With this film, Jackman emerges as the first actor to play a comic book hero in more than four consecutive films since Christopher Reeve as Superman.

Learning to do what you need to do to get done

Interview. Aubrey Plaza talks about how her new film, The To Do List, is putting a fresh take on an old theme — people losing their virginity

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

For Aubrey Plaza, discussing her new film, The To Do List, offers far too many opportunities for oversharing. The '90s-set film follows Brandy (Plaza), a type-A brainiac determined to start college sexually experienced by way of a detailed — if unromantic — list of activities to check off. And Plaza is having trouble keeping her own list to herself.

The To Do List flips the script on the story of young people trying to lose their virginity. HANDOUT

Considering the sexual frankness of the film, how awkward have the interviews gotten?
People keep trying to trick me into telling them about my first sexual experiences, and then I almost am like, "Well, when I was … wait a minute! I don't need to tell you that. That's for my own brain to remember." For some reason this movie kind of makes you think that it makes sense to ask about (this). But no, nothing's been awkward, except for me because I'm always awkward in interviews.

Do you find it weird or insulting that Hollywood always acts so surprised when a female-focused comedy does well?
Yeah, I feel that. I don't know why. There's just as many women as there are guys, so you would think that it wouldn't be shocking that there's a female audience and that there's people out there interested in seeing female-centric movies.

Do you think The To Do List would work in a contemporary setting?
I think there could be a story about a girl going through her firsts, because I think that's just a universal thing that happens, but I don't think this story could be told in 2013 for many different reasons. This movie was set in a time when people didn't Google everything and people weren't figuring things out online, which I think is the case nowadays. Who knows what teenagers are doing these days. I don't know. I mean, I'm 29 and I feel totally out of touch.

Things have changed at such a rapid pace that who knows how people are learning anything or where they're getting their information.

It's great to see a movie taking the awkward teenage sexual experience, which is usually told as a guy's story, and showing the girls' side.
Being frank about sexual things? I know. That's one of the reasons that I wanted to do the movie, because I'd never really read anything that truthfully explored that time in a girl's life, just a really frank portrayal of a girl figuring out how to do really simple things — well, I don't know if they're simple. Just really basic sexual acts. I don't know, everything I say sounds wrong (laughs). Just make me sound better and smarter.

The Word

Amanda Bynes having one of those good news weeks

Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

I have tried to keep Amanda Bynes out of The Word because she's obviously mentally unstable and her highjinks are more sad and disturbing than amusing. However, this item caught my eye: The former actress is now being hospitalized for setting a fire in the driveway of a stranger's home in Thousand Oaks, Calif. The cops investigated the former child-star-turned-Gremlin and determined she needed to be hospitalized on a 5150 hold, which is an involuntary hospitalization for mental evaluation that lasts 72 hours.

So this is good news. Maybe she will now get the help she needs because it appears she has other problems.

Bynes has reportedly jeopardized the last important relationship she has left by allegedly stealing from her pot dealer, according to Radar Online.

"Amanda's dealer used her bathroom while he was there and she jacked his weed," a source says of the troubled NYC-based actress.

As a result, the dealer has reportedly dropped Bynes as a client .

"He won't go to her anymore," the source says.

So, maybe this is more good news.

Lohan ready to get on with her life post-rehab

Lindsay Lohan is due to end her latest stint in rehab next Monday, and in preparation she's reportedly looking to do away with as many bad influences as she can, according to Radar Online.

"She has not been this good in a long, long time. She's come 180 degrees from where she was. It's amazing," a source says.

"It's very clear to her now who she needs in her life and who she needs to keep out of her life."

Sacha Baron Cohen

He will, he will, quit now

After years of planning and development, Sacha Baron Cohen has reportedly scrapped plans to portray Queen front-man Freddie Mercury on the big screen, exiting the film due to creative differences with the surviving members of Queen, according to Deadline. Cohen was reportedly hoping for an edgier portrayal of the late singer for the film, which was first announced in 2010, while the band members are leaning toward a more family-friendly, PG-rated account.

Countdown to Glasgow 2014

Commonwealth Games. Scotland's largest city gears up to host thousands of elite athletes next summer

life@metronews.ca

Glasgow's riverfront featuring the Scottish exhibition and conference centre. CONTRIBUTED GLASGOW SCOTLAND

In one year, on July 23, for the first time, Glasgow, Scotland will welcome more than 6,500 athletes and team officials to the 2014 Commonwealth Games. While rival city Edinburgh has hosted twice, the people of Glasgow are excited to put their own unique stamp on this elite athletic competition, which will run until Aug. 3, 2014.

"From the beginning, the Commonwealth Games has not just been about the sport, but the arts, and the community as well," says Kate McCheyne, Public Relations Manager for the games. While the athletes themselves won't descend upon the city until July 2014, the venues which will be used for the events will all have been completed, or refurbished, a full year before the games, allowing the community to enjoy the facilities before and, most importantly, after the games.

This is a sentiment reinforced by John Egan, of GlasgowLife, who is responsible for the management of the Sir Chris Hoy velodrome, where both the cycling and badminton events will be held.

"There's a misconception that the velodrome was built just for these games," he said of the facility, which opened in October, 2012, "But it was built for Glaswegians." Since the doors opened, (as of time of writing) at least 130,000 locals have passed through the doors to take advantage not only of the cycling track, but the state of the art gym (supplied with Technogym equipment, supplier to the Olympics). Sports are an integral part of the city, with an estimated 10,000 jobs in the field.

But it's not just the residents of Glasgow who are embracing the spirit of the games. When the call for volunteers went out, more than 50,000 applied from across the U.K., with only 15,000 to be in the final selection.

Accessibility is also a key theme for the games. One million tickets will be on sale from Aug. 19 to Sept. 16, both online and via paper application, and can be paid for either online, or via cheque or postal order, which is very unusual in today's electronic ticketing world. Tickets will be priced as low as $23.73, and at half price for children, with "babes in arms" (under two years) free of charge.

There is very much a youth focus on the games, with half of the athletes under the age of 25. The games mascot, Clyde, was chosen out of a contest open only to children, and out of 4,000 applicants, won by a 12 year-old girl after rounds of blind judging. The Glasgow 2014 tartan was designed by Aamir Mehmood, an arts student who beat out thousands of entries from more than 300 schools, and the digital media game has proven a hit with young fans. And for the first time, the volunteer age has been dropped to 16.

The Games has learned many valuable lessons from their Olympic counterparts, and many team members from the Glasgow Commonwealth Games shadowed their counterparts in London to learn. One of the main complaints about the London Olympics (my own personally, being over there at the time) was that tickets were not readily available, many of them having been given to corporate sponsors.

This frustration was compounded by the fact that sponsors did not utilize the tickets, and scalping or reselling of tickets was heavily enforced, leaving many empty seats in venues. In Glasgow, 70 per cent of tickets for each event are guaranteed to go to the public.

Unlike the Olympics and its Torch Run, which includes many torches, the Queen's Baton Relay of the Commonwealth Games is just one baton, which will have a message inserted in it, to the athletes, from the Queen. The baton is run person to person across all Commonwealth nations, including a jaunt in Canada scheduled for April 26 (cities to be announced).

Everybody in the pub gettin' whisky

It's time to imbibe.
You can't go to Scotland without sampling some of its boozy fare

DOUG WALLACE
life@metronews.ca

"You're in Scotland now — you can just call it whisky." Bartenders in Scotland are a patient lot when it comes to mixing Scotch whisky with tourists.

And with 40 bottles of it sold worldwide every second, this is big business on a global scale.

While the ingredients are simple — malt barley, water and yeast — the distilling process is an artform.

Whisky is aged in oak casks, obtained from bourbon distilleries in the U.S. (where it's required by law to only use a cask once) or from Spanish sherry-makers.

This lends the whisky the flavours of the cask's previous occupant. Whiskies are either blended or single malts, produced in six Scottish regions, each with its own signature traits.

To qualify as a single malt, whisky must be 1) made in Scotland, 2) bottled in Scotland, and 3) aged at least three years. The age on the whisky label always refers to the youngest whisky in the blend.

Whisky regions

Speyside: Home to the Malt Whisky Trail, this is the northern region on the banks of the River Spey between Inverness and Aberdeen, where more than half of Scotland's distilleries are found.

Though hard to categorize because there are so many to choose from, these whiskies have a stronger character, with slightly smoky toffee and floral notes.

The concentration of distilleries here dates back to a time when whisky was illegal, and the moonshiners needed seclusion amongst the rolling hills and winding roads.

It's also no coincidence that the water here is top notch.

Highlands: Essentially, all the area around Speyside. Lighter, sweeter flavours take the stage here, with more nutty and floral traits.

Lowlands: Everything south of the line between Edinburgh and Glasgow.

Whisky here is often triple-distilled, similar to Irish whiskey (note the different spelling), resulting in a lighter, smooth and mild taste.

Islay: Distilleries on this island off the west coast employ peat to dry the barley, which imparts a heavier, smoky, salty flavour.

Island: This region includes the other islands of Arran, Jura, Mull and Skye. You'll find a more tempered peatiness here, mixed with caramel and vanilla notes.

Campbeltown: This area on the Kintyre Peninsula produces just a few whiskies, each with a dry, smoky, salty character.

Shaking things up

Whisky cocktail

While purists may shudder, whisky is turning up on smart cocktail menus around the world. Here is a recipe for the Smokestack Manhattan from Rob Wilkie, head bartender at the Blythswood Square Hotel in Glasgow:

2 oz. Laphroaig 10 Year Old Whisky half oz. Campari
half oz. Crème de Cacao
1 oz. Red Dubonnet
Mix and stir with ice, strain, then garnish with an orange twist.

Water? Ice? Drink whisky however you like it. TIM STEWART

Veggies take centre stage on the grill

Roasted Garlic

1. Heat grill to medium, with one side prepped for indirect heat.

2. Remove outer layer of papery skin from garlic. Slice off top 1/2 inch from pointed top of garlic head. Set garlic, cut side up, on large square of foil. Drizzle with the olive oil, then wrap foil up and over the garlic to form a loose packet.

3. Set garlic over cooler side of the grill and cook 40 minutes, or until the cloves are golden-brown and soft. Remove from the grill and let cool. To remove the cloves, simply squeeze the entire head (or each clove) and the cloves should pop out of their skins. Set aside until ready to make garlic mayo.

Sandwiches

1. Prepare and heat a gas or charcoal grill for high heat, direct grilling.

2. Place red and yellow bell peppers on grill grate and cook, turning frequently, until skin is charred all over, about 5 minutes per side. Use tongs to remove peppers from grill and place in a large bowl. Cover the bowl tightly with plastic wrap. Set aside for 30 minutes. After 30 minutes, the skins should slip easily off the peppers. Slice them open, remove the seeds, then cut into large strips.

Grilled Veggie Sandwich with Roasted Garlic Mayo

This recipe serves six. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

3. In bowl, mix vinegar, olive oil, rosemary and a bit each of salt and pepper. Add pepper strips, turning to coat, and set aside to marinate for at least 30 minutes.

4. When ready to grill, return the grill to high heat.

5. Set the mushrooms and zucchini in a large bowl. Pour the marinade off the peppers and onto the zucchini and mushrooms, tossing them lightly to coat well.

6. Grill the mushrooms, gill side up, for 8 to 10 minutes, then flip and grill for another minute, or until completely tender. Grill the zucchini slices for 3 minutes per side.

7. Split rolls in half. Brush the cut sides lightly with oil. Place cut side down on grill for 2 to 3 minutes, or until golden brown.

8. Meanwhile, in a small bowl, mix together the garlic and mayonnaise until smooth. When the rolls are toasted, assemble the sandwiches by spreading both sides with garlic mayonnaise, then layering on the mushrooms, zucchini, peppers, basil leaves and cheese. Season with salt and pepper, if desired. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/ ELIZABETH KARMEL, AUTHOR OF THREE COOKBOOKS, INCLUDING SOAKED, SLATHERED AND SEASONED.

Give me a break and I'll mind my own business

Knowing what you need out of a vacation is key to re-energizing. Whether you need relaxation, fun, adventure, entertainment or leisure, plan your vacation to meet your needs. ISTOCK

You can't have one without the other.

Why taking a vacation is just as important as taking that next call

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

Did you know that 40 per cent of the Canadian workforce is feeling the effects of vacation deprivation? And that more than 50 per cent of young Canadian workers are feeling it too (the highest rate for all age categories)? This is just some of what this year's Annual Deprivation study found when surveying Canadian workers from coast to coast.

To find out what's behind these numbers and what career-hatchers can do to prevent themselves from feeling the negative effects of vacation deprivation, we talked with Beverly Beuermann-King, a health and wellness professional and work-life balance expert who was a key player in the study.

Why work-life balance is important

"Finding work-life balance is especially difficult for students and new grads as they're used to having irregular schedules," Beuermann-King explains. "What do we see most of when life is out of balance or we've been pushing ourselves for too long? More headaches, indigestion, muscle aches and sleep problems."

Though it's possible to keep this pace up for a bit, eventually things start to catch up. These problems become more chronic and start to take their toll on our systems in the form of diabetes, obesity and depression.

Achieving that balance

One way to achieve a work-life balance, Beuermann-King says, is to talk with your employer about their wellness policies. Ask about their thoughts on vacation time and how they make sure employees don't get burned out. Be aware that talking with your employer about their wellness policies is just one step of the process, though. You still need to be making sure that you're eating properly, getting enough rest and being active to keep your body and mind healthy.

Vacation deprivation and new grads

Vacation deprivation is when you're not using all of your vacation time or when you feel as though you don't have enough time off. According to the study, vacation deprivation rates were highest in young Canadian workers.

Beuermann-King believes the younger generation is feeling it the most because we're new to the workforce and haven't accumulated very much time off yet. We also have a very different view of the workplace than older generations.

Sun, sand and sanity

Here are just some of the ways that vacation deprivation can negatively affect a new grad personally and professionally:

- Decrease in creativity and productivity
- Becoming short-tempered
- Finding yourself dozing off in the middle of the afternoon
- Drop in drive, passion, enthusiasm and love of your job

Players rub salt on Braun's 'black eye'

MLB. Colleagues not jumping up to defend former NL MVP

Protective no more, baseball players are downright disgusted these days with doping.

Now they are demanding even stiffer suspensions for those caught cheating.

"It's a new generation of athletes that are standing up," Travis Tygart, chief executive of the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, said Tuesday. "The culture's been flipped on its head."

When Ryan Braun accepted a season-ending 65-game suspension Monday rather than fight Major League Baseball over evidence he used performance-enhancing drugs, fellow players appeared tired of those who cast shadows on the sport.

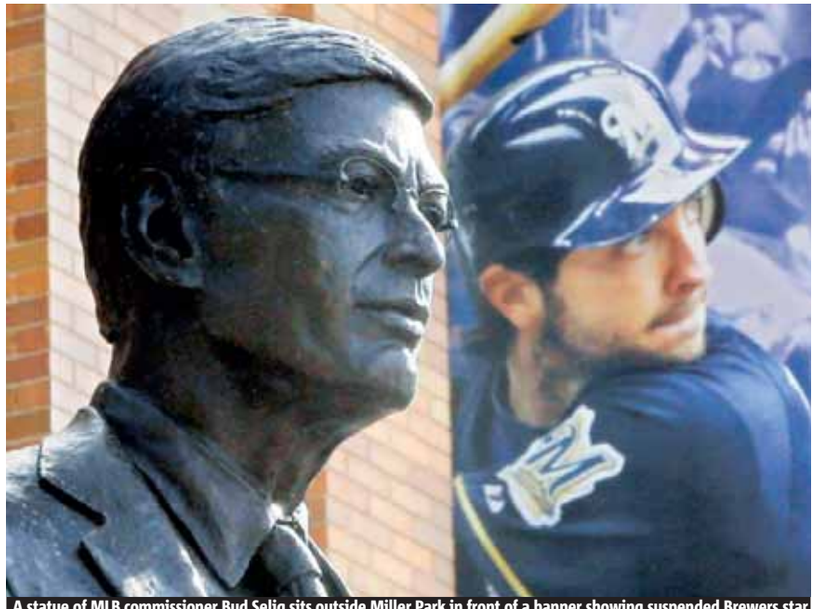
"They're lying to the fans," Los Angeles Angels pitcher C.J. Wilson said. "They're lying to their teammates. They're lying to their GMs, their owners, and they're going to get caught."

Skip Schumaker of the Los Angeles Dodgers said Braun let him down.

"Watching him talk right now makes me sick," Schumaker said. "I have an autographed Braun jersey in my baseball room that I'll be taking down. I don't want my son identifying what I've worked so hard to get to and work so hard to have — I don't want him comparing Braun to me."

Matt Kemp of the Dodgers, who finished second to Braun in the 2011 NL MVP vote, said the Milwaukee slugger should be stripped of the honour.

"We had conversations, and I considered him a friend," Kemp said. "I don't think anybody likes to be lied to, and I feel like a lot of people have felt, betrayed."



A statue of MLB commissioner Bud Selig sits outside Miller Park in front of a banner showing suspended Brewers star Ryan Braun on Tuesday in Milwaukee. MORRY GASH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A-Rod not out of the woods

New York Yankee Alex Rodriguez could face a much harsher penalty, a person familiar with the case said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

- The Yankees anticipate Rodriguez could be accused of using PEDs over multiple seasons, of recruiting other athletes for the clinic, of attempting to obstruct MLB's investigation, and of not being truthful in the past when discussing his relationship with Dr. Anthony Galea, who pleaded guilty two years ago to a U.S. federal charge of bringing unapproved drugs from Canada into the U.S.

One strike, you're out

"In my opinion, he should be suspended — lifetime ban."

L.A. Dodgers outfielder Skip Schumaker, on Ryan Braun.

Yankees manager Joe Girardi said Braun was guilty.

"You don't accept a deal unless you're guilty," he said.

"It's another black eye for our game... There's been a lot of scandals over the years, but you get tired of it," Girardi added.

Riders rewarded for perfect start

Quarterback Darian Durant was named the CFL's offensive player of the week after guiding the unbeaten Saskatchewan Roughriders to their fourth straight win.

Durant had 347 yards passing and four TDs in Saskatchewan's lopsided 37-0 home win over Hamilton on Sunday. The victory left the Roughriders (4-0) as the CFL's only unbeaten squad.

Riders linebacker Renauld Williams was named the top defensive player after recording two sacks and three tackles against Hamilton. Williams, a former Ticat, leads the Riders in sacks with five.

Saskatchewan receiver Rob Bagg captured top Canadian honours. The native of Kingston, Ont., had five catches for 125 yards and two touchdowns versus Hamilton.

Calgary Stampeders kicker Rene Paredes is the top special-teams player for the second straight week. Paredes hit four field goals in a 38-27 win over Montreal and has made 37 straight attempts. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Blue Jays botch 5-run lead vs. L.A.

MLB. Toronto drops sixth in a row despite out-hitting Dodgers

Adrian Gonzalez's three-run home run keyed a four-run eighth inning Tuesday as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Blue Jays 10-9, sending Toronto to its sixth straight loss.

Andre Ethier also homered in the eighth against Darren Oliver (3-2) and had three RBIs as the Dodgers erased an 8-3 deficit against a tired Toronto bullpen for their fifth win in a row.

Mark Ellis also drove in three runs for the Dodgers (52-47), while Jerry Hairston added a solo homer.

Jose Reyes had a two-run home run and three RBIs for the Blue Jays (45-54), who held a closed-door, players-only meeting that lasted more than an hour before the game.

Jose Bautista and Mark DeRosa had solo home runs for Toronto, which outhit the Dodgers 15-13. Brett Lawrie and Bautista each had two RBIs.

Former Toronto reliever Brandon League (4-3) pitched two-thirds of an inning to pick up the win. Kenley Jansen pitched the ninth for his 12th save despite allowing a run.

Down 10-8 in the ninth, the Blue Jays made a push when J.P. Arencibia singled home Adam Lind, but Lawrie ended the game with a fly to the warning track in left.

Blue Jays starter Todd Redmond held the Dodgers to three runs and seven hits over 5 2/3 innings, while Dodgers counterpart Chris Capuano allowed five runs on seven hits in 4 1/3 innings.

The Blue Jays took a 2-0 lead in the third inning on a single by Lawrie, a double by Reyes and a single by Bautista.

The Dodgers tied the game 2-2 in the fourth on infield hits to third by Yasiel Puig and Hanley Ramirez, a double by Ethier that scored one run and a single by Ellis that plated another.

Without releasing specific numbers, Dodge claims that the new transmission will help increase the Durango's overall fuel economy by about nine per cent, which should translate into a modest improvement for the V6's current 13 l/100 km city rating and 8.8 highway, and the V8's 16.6/10 numbers.

Review. Part Jeep, part Dodge, all family

wheelbasemedia.com

It may seem like a stretch, pardon the pun, but if you're looking for more passenger room than a Jeep Grand Cherokee, you'll be looking for a Dodge.

The related Dodge Durango for 2014 actually uses the Jeep Grand Cherokee's bones, but finds room to fit up to seven passengers versus the Jeep's five. We told you it was a stretch. Actually, it's a rubber-band-like 13-centimetre stretch between the front and rear wheels with 25 extra centimetres added between the front and rear bumpers. That's enough to squeeze in three rows of seats with space left over to tote a decent amount of groceries, sports equipment, luggage or what-have-you.

The long-serving Durango was introduced for the 1998 model year as a truck-based sport-utility vehicle with body-on-frame construction, but the vehicle switched to a unitized (frameless) design for 2011. At that point, Durango sales ballooned as buyers began to embrace the vehicle for its exemplary cargo and passenger-toting capabilities. The 2014 edition that arrives this fall is more of an update than a full-on makeover.

In back, there are new tail light pods containing light-emitting diode (LED) running lights along with Dodge's signature "racetrack" tail light system at the rear where an additional 192 LEDs fire up in milliseconds to keep inattentive tailgaters at bay.

Inside, there's a new three-spoke steering wheel and the instrument cluster has been reworked to accommodate the standard five-inch touch-screen info centre. Among the new options, second-row high-back bucket seats with an available full centre console can be ordered on all trim levels.

The Durango's engine compartment is familiar, with both the base 290-horsepower 3.6-litre V6 and the optional 360-horsepower 5.7-litre "Hemi" V8 returning for duty.

All-wheel-drive remains standard, but the drive system you get depends on engine choice. The V6 uses a permanently engaged system that automatically varies the torque between the front and rear wheels, depending on where it's needed. The AWD V8 comes with a part-time unit with a two-speed transfer case for when maximum torque is needed, such as when heading up an extra-steep hill.

The V6 is standard in the base SXT, R/T, new-for-2014 Limited and range-topping Citadel models (both rear and all-wheel-drive). The V8 is optional for the Limited and Citadel, but standard in the R/T.

Regardless of trim level, the Durango continues to deliver a level of ruggedness, interior capacity and outright performance swagger that few $40,000 to $50,000 sport utility vehicles can match at any price. And in terms of passenger count, it even outdoes the Grand Cherokee.

Autopilot. Nissan's DeltaWing exits early but wins more fans at Canadian racing debut

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

The DeltaWing's extreme aerodynamics are courtesy of its rocket-like stylings. BOTH PHOTOS RICK DOLE

Bird's eye view of DeltaWing.

If you've ever wondered, like I have, what the world's most interesting man might drive if he raced cars, then wonder no more. The answer is Nissan's DeltaWing, the world's most interesting racing car.

DeltaWing made its Canadian racing debut at last weekend's ALMS series stop at Mosport (now officially called Canadian Tire Motorsport Park). As predicted, it immediately became the crowd favourite, from when it first showed up at practice Thursday morning to when it retired early, on lap 15, during Sunday's race. The early retirement, due to low engine oil pressure, was a shame, because the first of its co-drivers, Andy Meyrick, had DeltaWing running second at the time and looking really good for a strong finish, something that's been hard to come by this season for DeltaWing.

Of course, DeltaWing gets its notoriety from being "not like the others."

DeltaWing looks like a rocket laid sideways — small front, big rear. Most racecars look like they're ready to eat corners. The DeltaWing looks like it would rather not turn, thank you. It looks the way it does because of its unique mission — to win endurance races by using half the fuel and half the tire material of a "regular" LMP1 class Le Mans racer.

DeltaWing's engineers believe this is possible because they've designed the car to have half the aerodynamic drag and half the weight of a current LMP1 or LMP2 racer (1,000 pounds versus 2,000 pounds). This means DeltaWing can do its racing thing with a smallish engine.

For this year's American Le Mans Series (ALMS) campaign, it's fitted with a turbo-charged four-cylinder 1.9-litre engine producing about 350 horsepower. By way of contrast, the overall winner of Sunday's race, the Muscle Milk Pickett Racing ARX-03, is powered by a Honda Racing 3.4-litre V8, making close to 600 horsepower.

Pre-practice on Thursday, I asked Andy Meyrick if he ever got used to the sight of the DeltaWing, or does it still freak him out?

"It's become normal now, I love it," says Meyrick. "(Co-driver) Katherine (Legge) and I call it our little baby."

You'd think those closely-spaced front tires aren't going to give you much cornering bite, but you'd be wrong. Meyrick says it's actually a pleasure to drive, mostly because it's so light.

"It changes direction easily, and you don't get the huge weight distribution and subsequent pitch in the car. So (you) just have to get used to how it feels. Very nimble. And with low drag we keep accelerating all the way down the straightaway."

Racing DeltaWing is certainly challenging in one regard — it's still a work in progress, and in need of constant development. But Meyrick says the team enjoys the challenge and believes the process ultimately makes the team and the car stronger. It looks different, but Meryrick notes that many of history's greatest racecars have also challenged conventional views — it's what they do.

"DeltaWing really challenges the way we go racing," says Meyrick.

So while DeltaWing may now challenge our conception of a go-fast car, who knows how "normal" it might become in the future. Notes Meyrick: "The numbers speak for themselves and the fans love it."
